

Transportation Quick Guide

Title VI

Title VI, Part A/B funds can be used for a variety of transportation services and related expenses. For instance, tribes may provide elders with transportation to and from medical appointments, meal sites, or socialization events. Additionally, tribes may offer medical transportation assistance or transportation related services such as meal deliveries or home visits. Please contact us if you have any questions, or if you would like to inquire about other eligible services or expenses.

Additional Funding Opportunities

Federal

Funding opportunities from 26 federal agencies can be found on Grants.gov. Most federal transportation grants are provided by the U.S. Department of Transportation, Federal Transit Administration (FTA), although other agencies may have funding opportunities available. FTA's current programs for tribal entities are listed on its dedicated webpage.

State

Many states have funding opportunities and technical assistance programs available for transportation services. The National Center for Mobility Management (NCMM) administers an interactive map listing various transportation agencies by state, and it can be used as a contact list for tribes to inquire about grants, technical assistance, or other related programs.

Medicaid

Transportation to medical appointments is a required benefit for Medicaid recipients and some states may reimburse tribes for providing such a service. Please contact the appropriate state Medicaid office for details regarding its transportation program.

County

Area Agencies on Aging can provide assistance understanding and coordinating shared, non-medical transportation services. Nearby counties may provide further opportunities for support and should be contacted to inquire about potential funding or assistance programs.

Private Organizations

Additional funding or support can sometimes be obtained through companies, foundations, religious or charitable organizations, local businesses, or private donors. NCMM also routinely updates its website with funding opportunities from private organizations.
